

"The Ottawa Spotlight"

(By Wilfrid Eggleston)

Ottawa, June 2nd. — A new chapter in Canadian radio history appears to be opening with the recommendation of the radio committee, tabled a few days ago. This, on the whole, the most vital news in a rather dull week. Legislation will be introduced in a few days which will abolish the present commission and set up a Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, very much along the lines of the set up in Great Britain.

At present, of course, there are three highly paid commissioners, who divide the work and responsibility of direction between them. The committee which investigated the operations of this type of organization. There had been laxity and divided control, they asserted.

The new Corporation would be headed by nine Governors, representing all regional interests in Canada, and consisting of men "of broad outlook, having a knowledge of the tastes and interests of the listening public and who can make a definite contribution to the solution of the problem before the corporation."

These men would serve for nominal salaries, actuated mainly by a spirit of public service, it is supposed. They would govern the general policy of radio in Canada.

The actual operation would, however, be controlled by a single, highly paid executive, the general manager. This executive would have an assistant.

(Suggest Major Murray)

Major Gladstone Murray, a Canadian who has risen to very high rank in the British Broadcasting Corporation, has been recommended for the new post. It is not yet clear whether he would be available.

Of course the change of management will not transform Canadian broadcasting into a close copy of British broadcasting overnight, even if that were desirable. The Canadian corporation will be faced with a completely different situation. In Canada, there are still numerous private broadcasting stations, and while it is proposed to gradually absorb these, except for the very small ones, in the national system, they will continue for some time to be an important factor. Moreover, the recommendations of the committee are that programs issued by private stations should be under the supervision of the new corporation.

The government has already indicated that the committee's report was acceptable and that the changes would be made.

The principle of national ownership of the radio broadcasting machinery was endorsed and reaffirmed by the committee. It was urged that steps be taken to improve and extend the present Canadian ownership of the machinery, that the grant which the commission has been rendering out of the federal treasury has not been adequate for the building of so many new stations as are needed, the committee advised that the new corporation should be empowered to borrow up to $500,000 from the federal government for such a purpose.

If the corporation is set up as recommended, it will be free from party control in the matter of the exercise ment and dismissal of employees and their remuneration.

Criticism Political Broadcasts

"Mr Sage" and other political broadcasts of the present election campaign are for some criticism by the committee, and it was urged that in future a stricter supervision of such broadcasts should be exercised by the committee, so far as to recommend that no political dramatized broadcasts should be permitted in the future.

The present commission will be automatically retired by the creation of a corporation, but it is expected that most of the personnel of the present commission headquarters, including one or more of the chiefs, will be absorbed into the new corporation.

The new corporation will have the power to publish papers, books, magazines, to acquire copyrights in literary, musical and artistic works, grant licenses to collect news etc. if the recommendations of the committee are fully implemented in the legislation.

This bill will be perhaps the major one still to come before the legislature. There is talk that the Bank of Canada act will not be proceeded with this session. The revision of the elections and franchise machinery will not be proceeded with this session, except sufficiently to deal with by elections.

NIGHTINGALE

Mr Leonard Hilton entertained the W. I. at her home last Thursday. The roll call was Hints on Seving. After the necessary business was concluded the meeting was turned over to Mrs. Shider of Shepard who is constitution convener. She outlined the general work of the W. I. and then read a paper on Ireland, that gave a very vivid picture of young life in the Emerald Isle. A vote of thanks was heartily given. Plans were discussed for the coming convention to be held in Standard on July 2nd. In conclusion a delicious tea was served and the social hour enjoyed by all.

Proel Hilton and Mr. Jacobs are very busy making hog poison but they are not as fast as grasshoppers that cover large tracts at a fast and furious rate. Local people are doing their best to cope with this evil.

The dance at the hall last Friday was well attended. Mr. Jacobs won a very fine cake on a draw and Miss Folk was fortunate enough to win the beautiful pillow. The members of the hall very much appreciate the support they received.

Bob Newall made a quick trip to Calgary last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Bragg of Wayne were week end visitors at the Harriman home.

The past two rains have been very welcome. The country is really beautiful at present. The trees and hedges on the Newall and Stoddley farms add greatly to the landscape. These gentlemen are truly repaid for their labor.

C. Y. M. C.

Mr McKinley delivered a stirring address Sunday evening in the United Church. His thoughts were somewhat off the usual line, but were perhaps the more arresting for this reason.

He stated that we are now in the incubation stage of the world's worst war. All know that increasing and ever increasing expenditure in munitions and the like almost inevitably lead to war.

The only power which can prevent this is the universal practice of the teachings of Christ. He appealed to the young people to establish a Christian Canada, and extend their work and influence throughout the world, and thus make it impossible for war to establish a world war. He sympathized with Mussolini in that in 1931 when he asked for more territory the League of Nations turned a deaf ear. The speaker said the League had undoubtedly done good, but it must be revised to form a more equitable basis.

The Church had heretofore aided in the war propaganda, but it is the Christian duty of every minister and member of the church to stand aggressively to the point of refusing to aid the war. The speaker stated that no one could be a follower of Christ who had been as good as a war.

He touched on the troubles existing between the various nations showing the great need for a universal development of the brotherhood of man.

He also dealt with the lack of opportunity for work for young men and women of today. In the last 160 years the world has been as good as a war for the machine, as to make it impossible for so many to obtain work, thereby leading to the moral of a large portion of our youth. This too is a condition which should not exist in a Christian nation.

Rev. V. M. Gilbert conducted the service assisted by Miss Jean Garrett. The anthem rendered merits special mention.

Queen Victoria Shocked Subjects by Railway Journey.

When Queen Victoria, in June, 1842 made her first journey by train from Slough to Paddington and declared that she had enjoyed it, wide circles of British sustained a serious doubt Mrs. and women shook their heads, or served a writer in Pearson's Weekly.

According to contemporary records Queen Victoria "accomplished the journey free from dust and crowd and heat, and was quite charmed with it."

When she descended upon the foot plate at Paddington station, reliable observers say she resembled a dabbled negro admitted more than a century ago by Royal Warrant.

A question was afterwards asked in the House of Commons by an M. P. who thought that her majesty's person should not be subjected to the hazards of railway travel. An answer was given stating that two carriages had been interposed between the engine and the carriage occupied by the Queen, to obviate the risk of collision. In those days many notable people strongly opposed the new mode of travel. The Duke of Cumberland, for instance, in the House of Lords, voted against a bill for a new railway because it would be very disturbing to the estates boys. He added that passengers would be exposed to death in these devil's carriages and all for what?

THE TREND OF WHEAT PRICES

The discouraging declines in wheat prices which have occurred in recent weeks may be attributed in large part to the failure of the world's wheat trade to come up to expectations. Last year's world trade, totalling about 525,000,000 bushels and which was expected to be anticipated by this year's trade, would reach 525,000,000 bushels, it has failed so far to keep pace with that estimate.

Mr. Broadbent is quite pessimistic about the outlook and intimates that Canadian wheat growers have made a serious mistake in meeting 25,000,000 bushels this season. The aggregate wheat acreage in exporting nations is unquestionably excessive, he says, having regard to the modern facilities in importing countries in Europe and in the Orient. Annual world trade, he points out, has declined from a peak of $150,000,000 bushels in 1925-26 to about 525,000,000 bushels this year.

There are still some people who have their minds made up that the world will take all the wheat Canada can produce. They do not seem to have gained anything from the experience of the Canadian Wheat Board under the chairmanship of James Murray during the past six months. If there was an attempt made to dispose of wheat freely by the use of every available method, Mr. Murray and his board made it, yet continuing Europe has persisted in its attitude of being strangely cold to cheap wheat. People who should know better practice about European nations being offered at Canada. Actually these nations

BRIDGE COSTING $8,000,000 TO SPAN VANCOUVER HARBOR

Vanouver, B. C. — Following the initiative of her California rival, San Francisco is studying bridges not only as the Golden Gate and Bay Bridge, the Canadian metropolis on the Pacific Coast, Vancouver, is to have its own big bridge across the harbor entrance.

Final approval has been given by the Canadian Government for construction of what will be the largest suspension bridge in the British Empire across the First Narrows to connect the city with the north shore, under the main span of the bridge, approximately 1,000,000 is being borne entirely by British financial interests headed by Lord Beaverbrook.

It is expected that the engineers planning the bridge will be in a position to have tenders for construction called some time in September, and the bridge will be ready for use within three years.

The bridge will be 200 feet high 1200 feet across its main span, and 1500 feet long. It will be the longest bridge of its kind in Canada.

Because the appearance of the bridge is as to whether such a structure would interfere with navigation, the Canadian Government at first declined to allow the work on for its natural beauty. The steel span will be strong from Prospect Point, a high promontory overlooking the Lion's Gate at the entrance to the harbor and on the north shore the approach will be built high above the present ground level, so that the bridge will be developed at a cost of several million dollars. The bridge will be 200 feet high 1200 feet across its main span.

CANADIAN FLOUR

Flour milling stands fifth among the manufacturing industries of Canada. Established in the early settlement of the country to provide for the home market, this industry has in the present century come to occupy a leading place in the world flour market. The decline in the international trade in flour during the past five years affected the Canadian industry greatly, but recently there has been again an upward movement in Canadian wheat flour exports. The value of production, in the flour and feed industry of Canada during the calendar year 1934 showed an increase of nearly 15 per cent over the previous year. In the calendar year 1935 exports of Canadian flour declined in volume but rose in value, while in the seven months ending in the present crop year there has been a sale in both value and volume.

Canada occupied second place among flour exporting countries in the calendar year 1934. Australia stood first and the United States third. Exports from Canada in that year totalled 5,654,000 barrels, Australia 5,649,000 barrels and the United States 5,165,000 barrels. Fourth place was held by Japan at 2,888,000 barrels and France was fifth at 2,283,000.
